

JOHN TAYLOR

BEST SEVEN NIGHTS
Johnny's on Second

Poolhall Junkies was fun, even if it did come with the smell of that Christopher Walken flick. Even better is the rechristened Johnny's on Second. If you can manage to be bored here any night of the week with five pool tables, seven TVs, one shuffleboard, two poker nights, five music nights and over 30 beers, you might have to face the possibility that you're just a boring person. Have a killer Johnny's pizza; it'll cheer you up.

BEST PLACE TO PRACTICE THE BAGPIPES

Jordan Pines Campground

Under the star-filled sky, surrounded by pines, distant pipe wailing can stir the blood like no other sound. Thoughts of Culloden, of Bonnie Prince Charlie and William Wallace rise with the melancholic-tinged tunes the lone piper gives breath to. In the case of a piper heard one weekend evening last September practicing his (or her) bagpipes, the chosen location may have had more to do with sparing neighbors or friends' ears than anything else. But, for nearby campers, it was hard to shake the sense of kilted ghosts stirring in the darkness.

Big Cottonwood Canyon, 877-444-6777

(and decidedly more metro-sterile) neighborhood? After many, many, many an after-work drink in the new joint, City Weekly staffers will tell you "Oh, hell, yeah." The old pinball machine's back, as is the eclectic crowd, and the nonsmoking thing is a definite plus, too ... well, for some of us.

BEST FOR DANCING
Area 51

Once upon a time, Area 51 was known solely for its goth, black-eyeliner-wearing crowd. And while it still holds on to its dark roots, Area 51 has proven itself a magnet for all music and social types. The large, two-story club with two spacious dance floors gives ample room to dance to Tina Turner on '80s nights (Tuesdays and Thursday), sing karaoke on Wednesdays and dance to techno and industrial music on the weekends. The club

BEST FOR LIVE MUSIC
The Depot

It's no surprise The Depot took the gold two years running. Its convenient downtown location (across the street from TRAX), massive quarters
